South County Power Connect

Learn about the project and provide your feedback.

Pacific Gas and Electric Company is hosting three public open houses on South County Power Connect, a proposed project that includes building a new substation and two new transmission lines in southern Santa Clara County. The proposed project will help ensure electric reliability in Morgan Hill, Gilroy and southern Santa Clara County.

Members of the project team will be in your community to discuss the details of South County Power Connect, answer questions and gather your input.
